

2022 Sustainability Week Curricular Activities

Double Degree in Law and Global Governance, Economics & Legal Order

1st Year

INSTITUTIONS & DECISION-MAKING

Faculty: Lligadas Gonzalez, Gemma

This session will cover the theoretical framework necessary to carry out a simulation of the Financing for Development UN Conference, aimed at achieving the Millennium Development Goals in sessions 5 and 6 of the course.

2nd Year

MODERN POLITICAL THOUGHT

Faculty: Saez Giol, Lluís

Students will be invited to participate in a cineforum in which a film related to environmental sustainability will be shown, followed by a debate, moderated by the professor, on the current state of the planet and its causes (cultural, economic, political, etc.), as well as a discussion on the possible ways to overcome or improve the problems, their viability and the conditions necessary for them to succeed in their performance.

CONTRATACIÓN PRIVADA

Faculty: Castineira Jerez, Jorge

Fairness in contract law

Discussion with the professor on the proposed topic. The following are some of the questions that will be discussed in class: Should there be a real or market equivalence between the benefits of a contract? Can the imbalance between the position of the parties be a limit to their autonomy? Should the liberal prism on which civil or commercial contracts are based be reviewed? Does it make sense, for example, to reserve the control of validity/abusiveness to consumer contracts? How can we move towards a fairer contractual system without jeopardizing the legal certainty that must underpin contract law?

3rd Year

SOCIAL THOUGHT II

Faculty: Saez Giol, Lluís

Students will be invited to participate in a cineforum in which a film related to environmental sustainability will be shown, followed by a debate, moderated by the professor, on the current state of the planet and its causes (cultural, economic, political, etc.), as well as a discussion on the possible ways to overcome or improve the problems, their viability and the conditions necessary for them to succeed in their performance.
