Fairness in contract law

Discussion with the professor on the proposed topic. The following are some of the questions that will be discussed in class: Should there be a real or market equivalence between the benefits of a contract? Can the imbalance between the position of the parties be a limit to their autonomy? Should the liberal prism on which civil or commercial contracts are based be reviewed? Does it make sense, for example, to reserve the control of validity/abusiveness to consumer contracts? How can we move towards a fairer contractual system without jeopardizing the legal certainty that must underpin contract law?
