

Teresa Picardo

Researcher, Esade Center for Social Impact

Education

- Master in Quantitative Economic Analysis at Universidad Autónoma de Madrid
- Erasmus Exchange program at Université Paris Dauphine
- B. A. in Economics at Universidad Autónoma de Madrid
- B. A. in Philosophy at Universidad Pontificia de Comillas

Areas of interest

Sustainable finance, public finance, impact investing, impact measurement and management

Biography

Teresa Picardo is Researcher at the Esade Center for Social Impact. Now she is involved in research in the field of impact investing.

As a philosopher and economist, she initiated her professional career working in an economic development project in benefit of an association of smallholder producers in Cambimba (Colombia). After graduating from a master in quantitative economic analysis, she has worked at Afi as a consultant in the fields of sustainable finance and public finance, as well as public policy evaluation.

She has developed projects related with the integration of sustainability criteria into the strategy, product design and reporting for different public and private financial institutions -following different market guidelines and the EU Taxonomy-. She has delivered trainings on the integrating of the EU Taxonomy into the strategy and operations of private credit institutions and a national promotional bank.

She has offered advisory services with regards to sustainability financial instruments with volumes ranging between €500M and €1,500M (i.e. sustainability bonds/loans, sustainability linked bonds/loans).

Selected publications

Picardo, Teresa (2019). Reflexiones sobre la innovación social a partir de la participación en un proyecto en Cambimba. Trabajo de Fin de Grado, dirigido por Guimón de Ros, José (Madrid, Spain)