

Alessandro Niccolò Tirapani

Postdoctoral researcher at ESADE Business School

Education

- PhD from Bayes Business School (ex Cass), City, University of London
- Master of Arts in International Relations at University of Bologna
- Master of Science in International Management at HEC, University of Lausanne
- Bachelor of Arts in Economics at University of Lugano

Areas of interest

Business & Society, Platforms, Non-Standard Work, Neoliberalism

Biography

Alessandro N. Tirapani is a postdoctoral researcher at Esade Business School, where he is working with Bilgehan Uzunca. Previously, he covered a one-year research and teaching position at Montpellier Business School, France. He is a qualitative scholar looking at the interaction of business and society from a sociological perspective. As such, his work revolves around two pillars: non-standard forms of employment, and platforms. He has done research on internships, delivery apps, and the corporate social responsibility of platforms. At EEI, he is expanding his studies on the latter. His goal is to help theorising and devising better, fairer, and alternative ways of organising.

Selected publications

Mena, S., Cavotta, V., & Tirapani, A. N., (2021). From Explanation to Outcome: The Use of Institutional Theory in Corporate Responsibility Research. In The Routledge Companion to Corporate Social Responsibility (pp. 168-180). Routledge.

Tirapani, A. N. & Gerosa, A., (2013). The culture of entrepreneurship: creating your own job. European View, 12(2), 205-214.